SIMPLE RECIPES FOR BEAUTY AND HEALTH

COMPLEXION BEAUTIFIER—It is a duty every wongen owes herself to look as youthful and charming as possible. But nothing is more repulsive than to see a woman with her face all daubel over with face powder in her desire to hide wrinkles and other marks of age. Instead of using powder, which clogs up the pores, enlarges them and eventually causes wrinkles and other facial blemishes, it would be far better to use a lotion that would improve and permanently benefit the skin. By dissolving four ounces of spurmax in one-half pint hot water and adding two to use a lotion that will do wonders as a skin whitener and complexion beautifier. week there will also be gatherings at king William and King and Queen Courthouses, all these points being far from railroads. The Norfolk and Western trip will be begun next week. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad series ended at Lexington Saturday the three-day campaign with a night meeting. The special train was run over the Shenandoah Division of the Baltimore and Ohio, having been begun at Wadesville, just across the State line, on Thursday, and having traversed the entire road to the southern terminus at Lexington. The stops, in addition to Wadesville, were Kernstown. Stephen City, Middletown. Harrisonburg, Cave, Mt. Sidney, Verona, Staunton, Mint Springs, Spottswood, Fairfield and Lexington.

apple shows of the country.

Care of Orchards.

Mr. Smith discussed the selection of the different varieties of fruit for planting, the care of the trees, diseases and infections to be combated and the preparation of the fruit for market. He said that the matter of selecting the varieties of apples that thrived best in the Valley was largely a matter of personal preferment. The "Yellow Transparent" and "Maiden Blush" do well in Virginia, as summer apples, and "Grimes Golden" as a fall apple. As a winter apple he recommended the "Stayman Wincsap," "Black Twig" and "York Imperial" as leading varieties. Alr. Smith gave his audiences the henefit of his expert knowledge on orchard care and coping with the agencies of fruit destruction—San Jose scale, cedar rust, coddling moth, etc. The lecturer, in addition, explained the improved methods of planting orchards, also the fertilization of the soil. The most effective method of exterminating these tree pests, the lecturer asserted, was to spray the tree very thoroughly, and certainly once in the winter for scale and in spring and summer for the coddling moth and insects generally.

He gave the spray formula as fol-

Mr. Gordon in his lectures impressed upon the farmers the important spoke they comprise in the wheel of American commerce, urging upon them to leave nothing undone to elevate agriculture to its rightful position among the professions.

In the preparation of the soil for a corn crop he recommended sowing leguminous plants which transmit nitrogen into the ground. Crimson clover, cow peas and soja beans, he said, were the best legumes to grow on land to gather nitrogen for the corn crops, the crimson clover, to be turned under, in early spring in preparation for the corn. Mr. Gordon laid much stress on the selection of seed corn, cautioning against injuring the root system of the plants with implements used in working the corn. A recent experiment with good care of seed gave a yield of eighteen bushels more per acre than seed left in corn crib.

Mr. Sproul, who is a member of the State Board of Agriculture, went into the growing of potatoes with thoroughness. Numbers of farmers whe comprised his audiences during the three-day trip are beginning to take an interest in growing potatoes and are impressed with their possibilities as a money-maker. Like Mr. Gordon, Mr. Sproul also referred to the availability of legumes as a soil fertilizer. Potatoes require more humus than almost any farm crop. Seed potato selection should be made with great care in order to obtain a large yield, and at the same-time a superior quality of vegetable. The lecturer advised the farmer to plant potato rows three feet apart, the seed to a depth of four inches below the surface, and advising that potatoes should always receive several spray applications of Bordeaux mixture.

A number of Baltimore and Ohio officers from headquarters accompanied the train, including George H. Campbell, assistant to the president; W. W. Wood, general industrial agent; Benjamin S. Dowdell, traveling freight agent, and C. W. Allen, traveling passenger agent. Both Mr. Campbell and Mr. Wood addressed the audiences at a number of stations along the route.
